Explanation

The Fontana Regional Library is the public library serving Jackson, Macon, and Swain counties in the Appalachian Mountains in rural western North Carolina. The library provides free access to books, periodicals, audiovisual materials, programs for children and adults, information, computers, and internet access. The library also has a mobile outreach unit providing programs and resources to area child care facilities. The Library had over 48,000 registered users, which is over half of the total population of the service area. We circulated over 400,000 items, or nearly 5 items per every man, woman, and child in the communities. There were over 445,000 visits to the library during the year, and the staff answered over 123,000 reference questions for the public. The free public internet computers were used nearly 60,000 times and the public used their own computers on our free Wi-Fi network over 68,000 times. The Library presented over 2,300 free programs to the public, attended by over 27,000 people, providing the community with safe, comfortable places to gather and share information and ideas. The Library's Mobile Preschool Unit visited over 30 day-care centers monthly, providing literacy resources, story-telling, programs, and workshops to area children and their care-givers. The Library partnered with over 130 local area groups and agencies to provide service and information to the public. These Statistics represent an increase in program attendance, meeting room use, and Wi-Fi use, while registered users, library visits, circulation, and reference questions remained high. At a time when some people are suggesting that libraries are not needed, our statistics show that library use is continuing to increase, and that the library is a vital part of the community.
